

The success of any society is measured, not by its economy, employment statistics or the size of its buildings, but by the happiness of its children, the humanity of its people and the insight and wisdom of its elders.

